The President is Missing by James Patterson and Bill Clinton

Deeply enjoyed this book, though part of that may be her deep affection for Bill Clinton himself.
It was a thrilling mystery.

Secrets of a Charmed Life by Susan Meissner

A refreshing change of pace from the normal WWII atmosphere, the story of two sisters separated during the war was enjoyable.

A River of Stars by Vanessa Hue

A compelling story about what a mother will do to save her child and a fascinating look at the reality of birthing centers that affect the Chinese American population.

The Address by Fiona Davis

Concerning the famed Dakota Apartment in New York, this wonderful, well written novel brings the historical to life.

The Dream Daughter by Diane Chamberlain

A wonderful imaginative story about what a mother will do to save the life of her child.

The Masterpiece by Fiona Davis

Wonderful historical novel about grand central station and the famed and forgotten art school.

The Dinner List by Rebecca Serle

Great conversation starter on which five people living or dead you would like to have dinner with.

Time's convert by Deborah Harkness

Linda's favorite!

When the Men Were Gone by Marjorie Herrera Lewis

Great WWII story without the WWII. Sandra's favorite. About women and football, the book showed a great appreciation for women in the 40s.

The Proposal by Jasmine Guillory

A cute romance with a lovely meet-cute. Light, fun, airy, and joyful.

The Dollhouse by Fiona Davis

Great to compare life in the 1950's with the present and what women deal with in today's society.

Winter in Paradise by Elin Hilderbrand

A fun Hilderbrand--an easy, relaxing read. Nice not to be set in Nantucket. While slightly reminiscent of the Banker's Wife, it was totally enjoyable.
